THE CITY OF KINGSTON.

INTRODUCTORY SKETCH.

In submitting our Directory of the City of Kingston we insert some remarks of an historical and explanatory nature, by way of an introduction. Perhaps no where else could we find such a task more agreeable, or the material for composition more abundantly supplied. Frequently while gathering the information contained in these pages have we been reminded of the fact that we are treading classical ground of our young Dominion. On every hand were evidences of an anterior history, the events of which reach back to the very threshold of civilized efforts in the New World, and call to mind many of the stirring scenes of that remote period. Where now stands the City, with her stately edifices and busy marts, was a favorite rendezvous of the Indians long before the venturesome spirit of the white-man had even dreamed of this Western Continent. Here upon the low, wooded shores of the beautiful Cataraqui Bay, and the gentle elevations of the points opposite, the proud Aborigines gathered their dusky ranks for council and warlike preparations, ages before the French penetrated the savage grandeur that reigned almost unbroken along the mighty St. Lawrence River and the picturesque Bay of Quinte.

The first European to visit this locality of whom we have any account, was M. de Courcelles, who, in 1672, ascended the river direct from Montreal, and met his Indian allies in a grand Council for negotiations. Impressed with the view that met his gaze on every hand, and convinced of the strategic importance of the situation, the wily Frenchman immediately sought permission to erect a wooden fort and trading post. This permission was granted, but Courcelles being soon after recalled, the work of completion was entrusted to his successor, the energetic Count de Frontenac, after whom it was named; and who is still honored in the name of the County. The Indians called the fort built by the French "Calaraque," a word signifying, in their language, "a place of great strength." Subsequently it was rendered "Cataraqui," and in this form the name is retained, as applied to the small river that flows into the Bay at its eastern projection, and also to a ward of the city, street, &c.

Without attempting to follow the successive chain of incidents that connect this place with each succeeding era of our history, we may mention it was from this point the expedition started, under La Salle, in 1678, which ultimately discovered and traced the great Mississippi River to its mouth.

From the former period down to 1758, Fort Frontenac continued to figure prominently in the history of French colonization in the New World, and was regarded by them as the most important post possessed by them west of Montreal. But British dominion was gradually extending northward, from the Atlantic seaboard, where the Saxon first planted his flag of conquest; and on the 27th of August, 1758, Col. Bradstreet surprised and captured the stronghold. The conquest of Quebec, by Wolfe, soon followed, and the whole of this fine country passed under British rule, where it has happily remained ever since.

The advent of the United Empire Loyalists, in 1784, marks the next and most essential date in the history of Kingston. Here the first company of refugees, under the direction of Capt. Michael Grass, landed, and began that heroic struggle of life which forms the brightest record in our country's calendar. The name they bestowed upon the City and Township was given in honor of their King—Geo. III, for whom they had conscientiously sacrificed so much. We mention a few of the names of those who composed that band of Loyalists—names that remain to this day indelibly associated with the city and her business:—Herkimer, McDonnell, Macaulay, Stuart, Ellerbeck, Markland, Cumming. Murney, McLean, Cartwright, Hamilton, Forsythe, Richardson, &c. Each and all of these with many other worthy compatriots, contributed largely, in their individual capacities, towards the general improvement of the place; and for some time Kingston occupied the first position in the infant colony.

During the war of 1812 the principal military and naval stores and equipments were concentrated here, and the fortifications, which had received early attention, were much enlarged and improved. The safety of the situation also gave increased confidence to all kinds of business enterprise, and, as a consequence, the prosperity of the City during the continuance of the war was very marked. Those useless relics of a martial period—the forts and martello towers,—which frown upon the visitor with a sort of menacing aspect, no longer attract that attention their importance merits; and at the present rate of public feeling will doubtless soon cease to be considered even as ornamental. Already we hear of negotiations going on with the Government, by the City authorities, with a view to having the Market Battery converted into a Passenger Station, in connection with a proposed Loop Line of the Grand Trunk Railway. Such an accommodation is much needed, and it is to be hoped that efforts in that direction may prove successful.

In 1840 Lord Sydenham, then Governor, selected Kingston as the Capital of the United Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, and the expectations of the citizens were high in anticipation of future prosperity. But the untimely death of Sydenham, who, in compliance with his own wish, was buried within the corporation, blasted forever the prospects of the oldest city in Upper Canada, in this respect. The seat of Government was removed to Montreal, in 1845, and the perambulating system found favor for several years. When, however, the Queen was requested to make choice of a locality as a permanent site for the Capital, it was supposed the central position, strong fortifications and easy means of access, would greatly favor Kingston in the Royal estimation, but for some reasons those who advised Her Majesty saw fit to pass all these considerations by and recommend Ottawa, nearly one hundred miles further north. That a grave error was made in this selection, all who are unprejudiced must admit.

For some time following this great disappointment the progress of Kingston was slow—remarkably slow, when the natural facilities for trade are considered; but more recently there seems a more manifest determination to shake off this lethargy, and assume the rights that properly belong to the city. The K. & P. Railway is being pushed forward with all possible expedition, and when completed will open up a vast region to the north, and bring an important addition to the yearly returns. The shipping interests are largely represented, the amount of grain consigned to this port, from western markets, for transmission to Montreal and European buyers, already assumes an enormous figure. Each year witnesses an increase in tonnage and value, and when proposed arrangements are carried out, Kingston will undoubtedly rank first on our inland seas. The harbor is capacious, and safe at all times, the anchorage being secure for the largest class of vessels.

A number of large manufacturing establishments are located here, which give employment to many mechanics and skilled artisans. There is a growing feeling in favor of greater inducements being offered, in order to secure more enterprises of this nature—a feeling which is only in keeping with the prevailing spirit of the age.

The City is so well known we need make no particular reference to the situation and attractions. There being extensive quarries of limestone rock in the immediate vicinity, the principal edifices are constructed of this material. The buildings have a solid, though somewhat sombre appearance, but upon the whole they are seen to good advantage. The chief public structures, deserving special mention, are the City Hall, a fine building in the Palladium style of architecture, the Custom House, Post Office and Court House. Many of the suburban streets are being lined with neat and picturesque residences, while the business part of the city is yearly undergoing considerable improvement. A fine Park, of about 30 acres, neatly laid out and ornamented, affords facilities for recreation and amusement which are highly appreciated by a large class of the citizens. The hotel accommodations are quite extensive, and will probably receive enlarged improvements at an early day. Altogether we find much about Kingston to appreciate; and must predict for the old City a brighter future than many are willing to allow.

GANANOQUE.

A large and flourishing incorporated village on the Gananoque river, at its confluence with the St. Lawrence, township and county of Leeds. The former stream is dammed at two places, affording an almost unlimited water power, which has been so far utilized that the village is now one of the most important manufacturing places in the Dominion. Being opposite the most beautiful part of the Lake of the Thousand Islands, celebrated for its scenic and sporting attractions, it is a favorite resort of tourists and pleasure seekers. The steamers of the Canadian Inland Navigation Co., and other lines plying between Montreal, Kingston, Toronto and Hamilton call here regularly. There is a station of the Grand Trunk railway $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the village, fare 25c. Montreal Telegraph Co. has an office here. Distance from Clayton. N. Y., 9 miles, from Kingston 18 miles, from Brockville 30 miles, from Montreal 155 miles, from Toronto 178 miles. Mails daily. Population about 2100.

THIS House is located on Main Street, in the business part of the town. Post Office, Telegraph Office, Billiard Room, Music Hall, in connection with the House, also, First Class Sample Rooms and good Livery attached. Omnibusses to and from all trains. Stages leave this House daily for different parts of the country.

NAPANEE.

An incorporated town on the river of the same name, townships of Richmond and Fredericksburgh, united counties of Lennox and Addington. It is the county seat. The court house, gaol and public offices are here situated, and there is also a fine building for exhibition purposes. A considerable quantity of lumber is annually exported hence down the Napanee river, which flows through the town into the Bay of Quinte, and a large amount of flour and other agricultural produce is freighted by rail and water communication. The town possesses excellent facilities for manufacturing purposes, and on the banks of the river are erected a number of mills and factories.—Montreal Telegraph Co., and Dominion Telegraph Co. have offices here. A station of the Grand Trunk railway is within the limits of the corporation. Distant from Kingston 26 miles, from Toronto 135 miles, from Montreal 193 miles. Mail daily. Population 4000.
